Becoming Us: shares insights into how adversity can bring out the best in individuals and communities, drawing on multiple disciplines to consider such topics as the superiority of city states over nations and the breakdowns of war.

Ways of Being in Teaching: How Christian couples can understand their personality types—and build a more powerful bond of love. He doesn’t listen to me . . . I don’t understand her . . . Why do we keep having the same fight? If you’ve ever felt baffled by the person you married, join Enneagram Coach Beth McCord and her husband, Pastor Jeff McCord, as they pull back the curtain to reveal why you and your spouse behave in different ways. Applying the Enneagram through the lens of the gospel, they provide practical steps, insights, and tools to better understand yourself and each other. This book will help you answer the questions “Why do they do that?” Stop committing “assumicide” about each other’s motives and dramatically improve your communication. Before you say or do anything, ask, “What would my partner think? Do our words make sense?”

How to Be an Artist: resonated nationally and internationally and were widely circulated on social media, covered in mainstream news media, and inspired an outpouring of creativity from musicians, dancers, artists, filmmakers, and more. The many highlights indicate an original composition by John Corigliano that was premiered by Renée Fleming.

Seeming, Being, and Becoming: How to be an artist: portions of this book originally appeared, in slightly different form, in New York magazine.

Becoming Burma: Thirty years ago Australian Aboriginal art was little more than a footnote to world art. Today, it is considered to be an important contemporary art movement, often promoted as being connected to a deep cultural past. Becoming Burma provides a new analysis of the shifting cultural and social contexts that surround the production of Aboriginal art. Transcending the boundaries between anthropology and art history, the book draws on arguments from both disciplines to provide a unique archaeological perspective that places the origins of the continent’s art history in the context of the broader historical forces of globalization and global exchange.

Becoming Kachin: Ethnic conflict has troubled the Kachin region of Burma since 1961. The area is of increasing contemporary interest because it borders India and China and has the potential to affect Burma’s reintegration into mainstream geopolitics. The book examines the conflict within a historical context of marginalisation in the region.
